WRIGHT TROUBLES TO BE AIRED AGAIN

Architect's Wife Starts Suit in Madison for Separate Maintenance

Madison Wis. — A new legal battle on Frank Lloyd Wright's finances was launched here by his wife, Miriam, with the serving of papers on the architect in a suit for separate maintenance, which will be heard in Circuit court Thursday.

The suit is being brought for Mrs. Wright by Benjamin Bull, Madison attorney, and a representative of the lawyer waited at a local hotel until 7:20 this morning before Wright was discovered and papers could be served. An order to show cause why Wright should not contribute a certain weekly sum to the support of his wife was issued by Judge A. C. Hoppmann Monday morning, and the hearing on this order was set for Thursday.

Wright is ordered to appear with the complete records of his property and an examination relative to his assets will be held before Court Commissioner William Spohn Saturday.

WIFE IN CALIFORNIA
Mrs. Wright, according to the complaint, is in California and lacks sufficient funds to return to Wisconsin. The complaint states that Mrs. Wright has an equity in Wright's property and she is asking that a new receiver be appointed to protect her interests in view of the fact that she is here to protect them and that there is danger that her share will be squandered.

As soon as the papers were served Mrs. Wright left the hotel. The action against him follows a report that wealthy friends were planning on assisting him in regaining his estate, Taliesin, at Spring Green, Wis., on which a Madison bank recently foreclosed.

WANT STEINLE TO SUCCEED MORSE

Lenroot's Friends Urge Him to Recommend Milwaukeean for District Attorney

Milwaukee—Roland J. Steinle, manager of the Lenroot campaign in Milwaukee in the recent election, was being mentioned Monday to succeed the late Roy L. Morse as United States district attorney here. Lenrooters appear divided on the appointment of a new district attorney or promotion of Levi H. Burrows, one of the assistants under Mr. Morse. Mr. Steinle, it is reported, has the active support of some of Mr. Lenroot's closest advisers.

Politically the question arises whether this patronage will remain with the Lenroot group or pass on to Senator-elect Blaine, who is said to be interested in getting recognition in Washington. One report is that Mr. Blaine plans an early trip east for a conference with Republican chieftains concerning patronage. Should he make an issue of the appointment, there may be some delay about it, leaving Mr. Burrows and others in the office to conduct the work of that department.

The same political forces in Milwaukee which brought about Mr. Steinle's appointment to direct the Lenroot campaign locally are said to be pressing his appointment to succeed Mr. Morse. Mr. Lenroot has made no decision.

Others mentioned in connection with the appointment are E. J. Koelzer, George B. Skogmo and J. A. C. Lightner.

STATE'S EXPORTS OF MERCHANDISE HIT $93,523,254

Increase for 1926 Over Preceding Year Is $7,863,216, Says Department

Exports of merchandise from Wisconsin during the calendar year 1926 were valued at $93,523,254 compared with $85,660,038 for 1925, an increase of $7,863,216, the Commerce Department announced today.

Shipments of wheat ranked first in order of value with $13,082,281 followed by automobiles and chassis valued at $8,134,070; tractors and parts, $7,763,397; machinery and parts, $6,729,966; hams and shoulders, $5,714,397; upper leather, except patent, $4,251,617; rye, $4,069,302; bacon, $4,008,433; lard, $3,274,305; milk and cream, $3,087,005; construction and conveying machinery, $2,427,141; motor cycles, $2,402,216; silk hosiery, $1,937,135; mining and quarrying machinery, $1,910,225; manufactures of iron and steel, $1,602,229; electrical machinery and apparatus, $1,509,393; barley, $1,504,734; threshers, $1,457,061; stationary and portable engines, $1,404,225; oats, meal and rolled oats, $1,301,508; animals and edible animal products, $1,247,447; parts of automobiles, except tires, $1,229,908; wood and paper, $1,179,556; and vehicles and parts, $1,088,589.

Exports from the United States during the calendar year 1926 were valued at $4,713,533,066 compared with $4,819,041,495, a decrease of $105,488,429. The decreased value of export trade for the year is attributed largely to lower prices for staple export commodities such as cotton.

The first ten states in order of importance of value of export trade for 1926 were New York, $761,249,769; Texas, $648,991,954; Pennsylvania, $322,431,651; California, $287,601,654; Michigan, $262,594,218; Louisiana, $243,502,921; New Jersey, $220,526,019; Illinois, $211,877,618; Ohio, $171,450,184; and Virginia, $142,603,658.

Some of the states making noticeable gains in export trade for the year with amount of increases were Oregon, $82,532,449; West Virginia, $55,046,223; California, $39,365,965; Washington, $21,734,135; Ohio, $18,522,501; and Michigan, $15,383,491. Fifteen other states and possessions increased their trade in lesser amounts as compared with 1925.

Losses were sustained by thirty-one states and possessions with New York, Texas, Minnesota, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, and New Jersey showing the largest decreases.

These statistics are compiled by the Government to show the relative standing of the different states and possessions of the Union in competition for foreign trade. In making the figures public, Dr. Julius Klein, Director, Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, under whose supervision the figures are compiled, points out that the statistics are based primarily on through-bills-of-lading and, therefore, in the case of some states they reflect but a part of the total foreign trade and for others included goods produced elsewhere.

REPORT 20 ENTRIES IN SPEAKING CONTEST

About 20 entries have been made in the fifteenth annual speaking contest in oratory and extemporaneous speaking to be held May 19 under the auspices of Lawrence college. They are about equally divided between the two types of speech. Prof. A. J. Frazer, head of the public speaking department at the college, said. Some of the largest high schools in the state will be represented at the contest. Appleton high school will have two entries, Aloysius Gage in the extemporaneous, and William Meyer in the oratorical.

Judges for the evening final contests will be Prof. A. A. Trevor, Prof. W. L. Crow, and Prof. W. S. Naylor. The group of judges for the afternoon has not been completed.

Say Business Heads If Draggy Mornings Hold
You Back—Quaker Oats
Widely Urged

RECENT commercial investigations show that almost 70% of the day's important work in offices, stores, etc., falls into four short, before-lunch hours. Likewise, 80% of the day's important classes in nearly every school and college in America fall, too, into the same period.

Thus breakfasts of well-balanced, complete food—food that "stands by" you through the morning—are being urged widely today by experts.

Quaker Oats, containing the excellent food balance of protein, carbohydrates, minerals, vitamins, "B" and the essential laxative "bulk" of oats is ideal food for that purpose.

No other cereal grown compares in food balance. Delicious and energizing Quaker Oats corrects the mistake of inadequate breakfast eating.

Start now with Quaker breakfast. Note then your mornings. Grocers have Quick Quaker (cooks in 2 1/2 to 5 minutes) and regular Quaker Oats.

Wisconsin Citizens Are "Up" On Latest Volumes

Madison—(P)—Citizens of Wisconsin are "up" on the latest books. The latest volume of the state Free Library commission, declared in an address from radio station WHA here Monday night.

She said that "Wisconsin people read book reviews, and titles are carefully off the press before requests are made from remote corners of the state for the book and the traveling library must buy the best of the new books."

One of the most interesting phases of the work in the traveling library office here is the opening of the day's mail, bringing book requests from hundreds of people scattered throughout the state, she said.

"The reading interests of Wisconsin people embrace all the realms of human knowledge," she said, "and no one who examines these letters can longer feel that there is any distinction in the kind of reading done by the city family and the farm family. Let us into the library."

"There is a request for Dugger's book on 'Mushroom Culture,' and here is a teacher who wants 'Successful Teaching in Rural Schools' by Pittman. A child on a rural route asks for Scott's 'Tales of a Grandfather.' Either DeKruif's fascinating collection of biographies which he calls 'The Microbe Hunters,' the new life of 'Catherine the Great,' or Anne Sedgwick's new novel, 'The Old Counters,' will please this man who is today returning General Allen's new book, 'The Rhineland Occupation.'"

"A girl who is engaged in writing a high school topic wants Robinson's 'Penology in the United States' from a rural route in Marathon county comes a request for Shaw's 'Study of Breeds.' A father in Shawano county is returning 'Bergson's Creative Evolution' and McDougall's 'Outline of Abnormal Psychology,' as well as two exciting stories which his sons have read—Jack London's 'Smoke Bellew' and Curwood's 'Courage of Marge O'Doone,' and the father asks in return for Pillsbury's 'Principles of Psychology' or 'Hocking's Man and the State.' Down in Grant county a young lady asks for Bradford's 'Damaged Souls,' a volume of biographies including men such as Aaron Burr, Benedict Arnold, and P. T. Barnum.

"The next letter begins, 'Dear Traveling Library: This is a rushing order and I would like to have you send me at the earliest possible moment Sanford's 'Story of Agriculture in the United States,' Anderson's 'Electricity for the Farm,' and Steiner's 'Introducing the American Spirit.'"

"From Iowa comes a request for material for a club paper on the life of Stephen Foster, the composer who wrote those well known songs, 'Old Kentucky Home,' and 'Massa's in de Cold, Cold Ground.' Here are requests from a farmer, a doctor and a lawyer in three widely separated parts of the state for Will Durant's 'Story of Philosophy,' while from a rural clergyman there comes a request for 'This Believing World,' that popular account of the world's religions.

Aldrich's 'Story of a Bad Boy,' Mark Twain's 'Huckleberry Finn' which the library has 43 copies; Louisa May Alcott's 'Old Fashioned Girl' and 'Jo's Boys' are requested by some of the younger readers. From Pierce county comes a request for Spengler's 'Decline of the West.'"

"The high school juniors in one community are planning to have their 'Prom' a Dutch affair, and are seeking suggestions not only for the decorations but for Dutch games, dances, music and songs.

"The Traveling Library receives many requests for standard fiction too. Up in Lincoln county someone is reading modern drama and wants two plays by Eugene O'Neill, 'Anne Christie' and the 'Harry Apo'—rather in marked contrast to the request of the next borrower for a book on Airplanes.

"Someone in Buffalo County wants to read up on the banking system of the United States from 1792 to date. Pearson's 'Show Card Designing' is requested by a borrower over in Calumet county. This young farmer wants exciting tales like Dower's 'Phantom Herd,' Beach's 'Flowing Gold,' Webster's 'Man's Man.'"

"And so they come! Day in and day out. Each of the letters adding proof of the fact that people in Wisconsin are a reading people.

CHEESE MAKER IS ORDERED TO STOP FEDERATION FIGHT

Greenbush Man Must Refrain from Making Misleading Statements

Madison—(P)—After a public hearing, the state department of markets Monday ordered Ira Conger, Greenbush cheese maker, to refrain from making any false or misleading statements relating to the price paid by the Wisconsin Cheese Producers Federation, Plymouth, for cheese sold and delivered to the organization.

Edward Nordman, commissioner of markets, presided at the hearing which is an accordance with Wisconsin statutes empowering such findings and investigations.

The department held that Conger's statements constituted an unfair trade practice in business within the meaning of the state statutes. In his findings and order of the case, the department held that "during the year 1926 and in the month of January, 1927, that American cheese manufactured by Conger during this period was sold and delivered to the Wisconsin Cheese Producers Federation; that thereafter the local association ceased to sell to the federation; and delivered no more cheese, although action to this effect was not taken by the association until March, 1927."

"That about February of this year Conger stated to R. R. Smith Manitowish county agent, and to George Kappelman, farmer, that the federation had paid for the 1926 cheese 6-10 of a cent per pound below Plymouth board price, that a loss for 1926 had been sustained by patrons of Conger's factory causing them to discontinue selling to the federation and that his factory had lost 6-10 of a cent per pound on all cheese sold to the federation last year."

"That before making these statements Conger did not make any comparison to determine whether his factory actually received 6-10 of a cent per pound less than if his cheese had

REASSIGN GROUP TO LEGION MEET

Badgers Will Leave from Quebec Instead of from Montreal, Canada

The Wisconsin delegation to the 1927 convention of the American Legion was reassigned last week at a meeting of the national executive committee of the legion, attended by Colonel H. L. Plummer, national executive committee man of the legion for Wisconsin. The meeting was held at Indianapolis, Ind., national legion headquarters, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The badgers will leave from Quebec, Can. rather than from Montreal and will take the ship, "Montclair," rather than the "Albion." Minnesota, Oregon and South Dakota will be on the same ship with the Wisconsin men. The change was made when the enrollment for the trip to date was not as large as expected. The national total now is 10,000, so that fewer ships are needed.

Daniel Sowers was chosen national Americanization director, to succeed Frank Cross, who resigned, to become effective June 1. The committee adopted two resolutions, the first of sympathy to relatives of Noel Davis, commander of the American legion Paris convention plane, who was killed in a crash. The other was to the French government expressing the hope that her flyers will be found alive.

Vienna recently held a concert in which the numbers were either by Scottish performers or of Scottish origin.

MOOSE BOWLERS WILL RECEIVE PRIZE MONEY

Bowlers of the local Moose lodge who took part in the state lodge tournament this year will not have to fear concerning their prizes in spite of the fact that Theodore Heunke, Racine, tourney treasurer, is charged with embezzling $900 in prize money. Mr. Heunke was arrested for embezzlement but latest reports say that he was bonded and the prize money therefore will be recovered. Appleton winners expect to receive their awards in the next few days.

Firestone Dealers

Have Purchased 100% More GUM-DIPPED TIRES

[This Year Compared With Same Period Last Year]

THE demand from car owners for Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires has given Firestone Dealers a large increase in volume that enables them to sell these tires to you at the lowest prices in the history of the industry.

On the cars of motorists everywhere, in the every-day service of the largest truck and bus operators, these wonderful tires are delivering unheard-of long mileage together with greater safety and comfort.

The Firestone Balloon Tread, scientifically designed three years ago, and unchanged today, follows the contour of the tire carcass with no excess rubber at the edges to cause "shoulder breaks". Narrow rider strips permit the tread to yield to depressions and cling to the road, preventing skidding. This tough, pliable tread has the wear-resisting qualities that give thousands of extra miles of service.

The tread, however, is not the only important part of the balloon tire. It must be placed on a carcass that has the qualifications to withstand the terrific flexing that this design permits. The Firestone carcass is made of cords dipped in a rubber solution which not only saturates and insulates every fiber of every cord, but unifies sidewalls with carcass, eliminating any possibility of separation under the extreme flexing of low pressure tires.

Many Firestone Dealers are prepared to take your old tires, offering you a liberal allowance on a new set of Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires to start the motoring season.

To meet a demand for a low price tire and tube, Firestone designed and manufactures, for Firestone Dealers only, Oldfield Tires and Tubes, which carry the Standard Manufacturers' Guarantee.

CANADA SPORTSMEN CARRY OFF HONORS DURING PAST YEAR

Dominion Representatives Set Pace in Some of Fastest Fields

New York—(AP)—The Maple Leaf may not wave forever victoriously over athletic fields, but within the past year at least the Canadian emblem has been conspicuously triumphant. The Dominion has set the pace in some of the fastest fields.

At such spectacular winter sports as hockey and speed skating Canada has more than held her own. Hockey is the Dominion's national sport and its Montreal Maroons are the present world's professional champions. The Ottawa Senators also have set most of this winter's pace in the National Hockey League, the "big league" of the game.

Meanwhile Charles Gorman of St. John has just lifted the international outdoor speed skating crown in the championships on American ice at Saranac and Lake Placid, while a Toronto girl, Lella Brooks, ranks high among the women skaters.

But these conquests are more or less traditional, so that it is the Canadian prominence in such other sports as boxing, truck and swimming that attract attention. No ring figure such as the lithe, handsome French-Canadian, Jack Delaney, needs any introduction. George Young, the 17-year-old Toronto swimmer, exhibited a rare combination of courage, nerve and skill to be the first to conquer the Catalina Island channel, off California.

The marathon running prowess of a sturdy young Nova Scotian, Johnny Miles, emphasizes another Canadian advance. Miles won the classic Boston A. A. marathon last year and in doing so conquered Clarence DeMar, the United States champion, and Albin Stenroos, the Finnish holder of the Olympic title. Just at present he looms as a strong candidate for the 1928 Olympic championship.

Rosa Crosse of Toronto, in indoor as well as outdoor competition, has proved herself one of the fleetest of feminine sprinters, a holder of several world's records. Until Charley Paddock breezed his famous "100" in 9 1/4 seconds last year Cyril Coe, a Canadian, was among the joint holders of the world's record of 9 3/4 for the century.

Canada has no oarsmen quite up to the prowess of the famous Hanlon of bygone days, but has a potential champion in Joe Wright, Jr., husky son of a noted father, whose coaching efforts have been divided between Toronto and Philadelphia waters. Wright was victorious over the American national champion, Walter Hoover, last season.

REGAINS VOICE, TAKES LIFE

Tragedy followed joy in the home of a farmer named Langsdorf of Badenuehm, Germany, recently. He became dumb during the Battle of the Somme in 1916 as the result of a shock following the explosion of a British shell. Recently Langsdorf was stricken with influenza. In delirium he uttered a cry and recovered his speech. His wife and children were delighted to hear his voice, but Langsdorf was so amazed that he lost his reason, and went into the woods and hanged himself.

PROPER DRAINAGE OFFSETS DAMAGE BY SURPLUS WATER

TOO MUCH MOISTURE AS HARMFUL AS TOO LITTLE, EXPERT SAYS

Wet Spots Reduce Yield, Increase Labor and Add to Cost of Produce

Madison—(P)—Proper drainage methods to offset possible damages from excess water on farm lands are advocated by F. R. Jones of the University of Wisconsin's agricultural school.

Crops need water, but an excess is as bad as a deficiency he believes, and because of this scientific drainage principles should be utilized by Wisconsin farmers.

In an article appearing in the latest issue of a Wisconsin farm magazine, Prof. Jones sets out the proper means of relieving crop lands from an abundance of water.

"The wet spot in the cultivated field reduces the yield, increases the labor and adds to the cost of a bushel of corn or a ton of peas," he writes.

"Plant pathologists tell us that the root rot and the wilt fungus are rampant in peas on the spots that are too wet during the last of June and first of July.

"In the spring a wet strip delays the planting of the whole field and puts it out of the 'Early June Peas' class.

HARD TO DODGE SPOT

"It is harder to dodge a spot when wet than to cultivate it when dry. Fields made irregular and corn rows made crooked by the encroachment of a marsh are harder to cultivate than rectangular fields. The three-cornered acres projecting, turning more than 300 corners to plow it with a 14 inch plow, or about 10 times as many corners as an acre 80 rods long.

"It is to make cultivation easier, and to increase the yield acre rather than to increase the acreage that we are draining in an amount wet fields. This is to concentrate on the present time. On certain farms it may include the drainage of new flat land for corn.

"Get good surface drainage on every wet strip in the field. A surface run eight feet wide and sloped to a rounded bottom a foot deep with a light grader affords an outlet for dead furrows and prevents the surface from having a little. Perhaps it needs only a little work with a spade through the ridge at the fence to lead the water out into a ravine or road ditch.

DON'T WAIT FOR REPAIRS

"Perhaps a culvert in the road needs to be lowered. In that case don't wait three years to get the town board to lower a culvert. Get busy with a spade and a pickaxe and do it yourself before breakfast some morning. With care, you will be leaving the road in better shape because of the drainage. If the neighbor below the road gets scared, remind him that the road is benefited. It is better for him to have this surface water run off during a rain than to have it dribbling down on him as seepage all summer.

"Cooperation among adjacent land owners is essential in the improvement of an outlet for tile. Perhaps a creek two miles long can be straightened and farmers can tile out one of a dozen farms can tile out the wet spots in their fields. The smallest ditch that has been found satisfactory is three feet wide at the bottom, six feet and 15 feet wide at the top. Where a smaller ditch would do, a big tile and a surface run is cheaper and better. Excavation costs from 15 to 25 cents a cubic yard. A ditch two miles long eight feet wide at the bottom, seven feet deep and 22 feet wide at the top was let recently at 16 cents a cubic yard, or about $3,200 a mile. Smaller ditches cost less per mile, providing they are long enough to make the job worth while.

PLANS PROGRESSING FOR GUERNSEY PICNIC IN JUNE

Green Bay—Plans for the Danny Duff picnic of the State Guernsey Breeders' association, to be held on the Fern Dell farm on June 3, are rapidly progressing. According to all predictions, there will be a large attendance of state Guernsey breeders and others at the picnic.

TO HOLD SEED POTATO TESTS ON BIERI FARM

Egg Harbor—On the Horse Shoe Bay farm, managed by R. E. Bieri, a seed potato treatment demonstration will be conducted on May 19, by E. F. Rusy, agricultural agent of Door-co and Mr. Bieri. All potato growers in the vicinity have received a written invitation to be on hand on the day of the demonstration to have their seed treated.

Door-co Farm Agent Gives Advice To Small Gardener

W. F. WINSEY
Special Farm Writer

Sturgeon Bay—E. F. Rusy, agricultural agent of Door-co, is forwarding valuable hints to the small gardener in his district that runs as follows:

"Vegetable gardening operations are now in full swing and the average gardener often fails to appreciate the value in money which is represented in the 'little patch by the side of the house.' The feeding of the soil in this overworked spot is of the greatest importance. The three necessary elements to plant growth are nitrogen, phosphate, and potash. The nitrogen can be supplied by the old, reliable barnyard manure which works best if it is not coarse. The phosphate can be supplied by applying rock phosphate or acid rock phosphate. The latter will give the quickest results,

A RECORD HERE, SOMEWHERE

Somewhere in the life of this ewe, owned by John Nabholz, farmer near Cedar Rapids, Ia., there's a record. The ewe is 25 years old. If that's nothing startling, she has produced 50 lambs and 200 pounds of wool in her lifetime, bearing twins practically every year. Ray Nabholz, son of the sheep's owner, is with her.

Little Waste Found In Dairy Industry Of U. S.

Madison—(P)—The dairy industry is ridding the nation of waste, reported to use "everything but the squeal," in the utilization of by-products.

Prof. H. A. Schutte, University of Wisconsin chemist, says that through the wizardry of the chemist the dairy industry's by-products are becoming as numerous as those of the oil refining or coke making industries. Everything from glue to cigar holders is now being made from milk, he said.

"Passing through the manufacturing processes devised by chemists, the skim milk left over from butter making may emerge in one of hundreds of forms," Prof. Schutte declared. "Recovered casein, the most abundant

BUTTER MARKET IS SLOW DURING WEEK

Cheese Trading Fair, Hog Prices Decline, Cattle Values Uneven

Madison—(P)—Butter markets of the week were slow, while the cheese market was marked with fair business, hog prices declined and cattle were uneven, the weekly review of the state department of markets said today.

The review shows the following conditions:

"After a week marked by liberal receipts, slow trading, fractional declines and nervousness, the butter markets closed with fair trading and a fractional advance on some markets. Production during the week showed definite increase and dealers were opposing advances. Although the week closed with a fair volume of trade, supplies are ample to the demand on all grades with the exception of 89-90 scores which were fairly closely cleaned up. The government report of cold storage holdings released today shows storage holdings of butter on May 1, 1927, amounting to 3,432,000 pounds as compared with 17,527,000 pounds on May 1, 1926, a reduction of 14,095,000 pounds. Centralized car market trading was slow. Butter prices are about 1 1/2 cents higher than last year at this time.

SMALL CHEESE LOTS

"Business was fair in cheese although confined to small lots. Generally, however, the market tone is unsettled with stocks in liberal supply and moved with difficulty. Production of American cheese showed a considerable gain during the last week in April. The government cold storage released today shows storage holdings of butter on May 1, 1927, amounting to 3,432,000 pounds as compared with 17,527,000 pounds on May 1, 1926, a reduction of 14,095,000 pounds. Centralized car market trading was slow. Butter prices are about 1 1/2 cents higher than last year at this time.

"Hogs prices continued to decline during the past week as a result of increased receipts. It is reported that values are sufficiently low to induce more liberal buying. A free movement is essential to prevent heavy accumulations. Prices now are the lowest in over two years and are $2.60 lower than last year at this time.

"The cattle markets were uneven during the past week. Receipts of good to choice steers were liberal and values were 25 cents lower than last week. On the other hand, medium grade steers were active and this class gained 25 cents as compared with the previous week. Cattle prices are about $1.60 higher than last year at this time.

"Receipts of sheep and lambs were only slightly higher than last week and have not affected prices. It is reported that around 60 per cent of the California spring lambs have already gone to market. Prices are about the same as last year at this time.

UNUSUAL FARM GROUP DOING BUSINESS IN ELLISON BAY REGION

Association Buys and Sells 25,000 Bushels of Potatoes—Ships by Boat

BY W. F. WINSEY
Special Farm Writer

Ellison Bay—Since 1920, unusual farm organization, known as the Ellison Bay Potato association, composed of farmers has been doing business in this vicinity. It buys and sells farm produce as well as the necessities of farmers, such as seed, fertilizer, flour, and feed. In the one item of potatoes, it buys and sells an average of 25,000 bushels a year and often gets much better than top prices. Shipping is done by boat.

The organization consists of 68 farmers or growers. A membership fee of $50 is paid by the applicant on joining the association. This money and a blanket note signed by all the members are the two sources of funds used by the association to do business and make it possible for the association to pay growers cash for their products.

LIST OF PRODUCE

The farm produce, beside potatoes, bought from growers by the association are peas, barley and oats which may be stored in an elevator controlled by the association.

One man has charge of the dock and in season the association employs several men in grading and shipping potatoes.

Most of the flour and feed is bought in Green Bay but it is usual for most of the potatoes to go to Chicago. Last year potatoes were shipped to a large number of markets.

Of this association, W. C. Powers is president, J. A. Hass, secretary and treasurer, and the directors are Isaacson, Victor Olson and William Carlson.

EGG HARBOR MAN SELLS 61 HEAD OF FAT STEERS

Egg Harbor—R. E. Bieri, manager of the Horse Shoe Bay farm recently sold 61 steers, one and two years old, in the Chicago market. These steers were fattened by Mr. Bieri on alfalfa hay, silage, ripe corn, and cotton seed. Cotton seed was the only item in the ration that was not produced on the farm. The average daily gain of the steers, while being fed, was 2.08 pounds.

"Fattening steers is a paying proposition on a farm," says Mr. Bieri, "if the owner in selling the steers can get a good price for the feed consumed. The fertilizer the steers produce is clear profit." The 60 steers fattened and recently sold by Mr. Bieri, paid a margin of 40 per cent of the price paid for them and the value of the feed to say nothing of the fertilizer. Mr. Bieri expects to purchase another herd of 40 steers soon and prepares the animals for the market. The last herd of steers was fed 163 days by Mr. Bieri.

CHERRYLAND TO BE IN BLOSSOM MAY 22

Predict Tourists Who Delay Door-co Visit to Memorial Day Will Miss Full Bloom

Sturgeon Bay—The leaves are coming out on the cherry trees and it is predicted by H. W. Ullsperger, manager of the Door County Fruit Growers' union, and Karl S. Reynolds of the Reynolds Preserving company that the cherry trees will be in the height of the blossoming period on May 22.

During the week divided into two equal parts by Memorial day, 10,000 tourists toured the many regions of Door-co last year, and found the cherry trees in full bloom. It is predicted, however, that visitors who postpone their tour to Memorial day this spring will miss the better part of the display.

The highways through the cherry district are in as good condition this spring as they could be if they were especially prepared to carry the armies of tourists who will circle the Door county peninsula to see the cherry and apple orchards.

BUILDS CHICKEN COOP

Egg Harbor—Mrs. Ed. Gagnow, built a new chicken coop this spring and intends to raise poultry on a large scale. Some weeks ago, Mrs. Gagnow purchased 200 White Leghorn baby chicks and has succeeded in bringing 160 chicks through the uncertain period.

RUSSIA IS EXCITED

Russia is very much wrought up over the seizure by the British government of Arcos house and the papers of the Russian Trading corporation in London. So is England, particularly the opposition to the Baldwin government and the radical wing of organized labor. The raid was made with the expectation of securing important documentary evidence of soviet propaganda against Great Britain. It is said that the document wanted was a communication to the Amir of Afghanistan, who is known to have direct bolshevik connections. A statement made in the house yesterday by Sir William Joynson-Hicks, home secretary, shows that the communication sought was not found, but that a large amount of incriminating evidence of soviet conspiracy in England was obtained. Sir William's statement also shows that he did not act on his own judgment and suspicions, but that the measure had the approval of the prime minister and of the foreign secretary, Sir Austen Chamberlain.

Whether the raid was justified, we do not undertake to say. It is a matter for the British government to determine for itself; to it will accrue the benefits if it was well advised, and the damage if it was a mistake. What makes the incident of grave diplomatic import and the cause of so much feeling both in England and Russia is the fact that the soviet government is doing everything it can to undermine the British government and sow the seeds of revolution, and the British government knows it. The British government knows too that from the beginning Russia has not kept faith in her treaty engagements to discontinue active propaganda in England as well as against the British empire at large. Arcos house was an organization of propaganda. It was set up by the soviet as a troublemaker. England is perfectly aware of this, and of all that has been going on in violation of the trade agreement with Russia.

When England several months ago threatened to abrogate the trade treaty, it was not because she had exceptional evidence of Russian duplicity, but in the hope that this public declaration might frighten the soviet into a cessation of its hostile social propaganda. It has been a question all along, and it is a question now, of how much Great Britain will undergo from Russia before she denounces the trade treaty. It is not a question of whether Russia is keeping the engagements of that treaty, for she is not. If the British government were dealing with a responsible government, and one of integrity, even the breath of suspicion or the remote suggestion of bad faith would lead instantly to a crisis and an explanation. When England negotiated her treaty with the soviet, she knew she was dealing with a bad egg and that she had to trust to her own resources to protect herself. She knew she could place no confidence in either bolshevik promises or pretensions. She knew that she would have to be constantly on guard against soviet conspiracy. She had no reason to expect good faith in anything to which Russia bound herself. It was a gamble on how much England would tolerate of communistic assault in return for the profits of Russian trade and Russian concessions. Apparently she has had to endure more than she contracted for, and is nearly at the end of her rope.

Russia will not let Great Britain alone because British labor is the most fertile field for communist seed there is in the world. Who is responsible for this weak spot in the trades union movement of England is not of concern here; suffice it to say that British employers have a social viewpoint that could not be comprehended in the United States and that serves to keep labor at perpetual loggerheads with it. The Third Internationale has a strong following in England. It even has representation in parliament. Its policy is to foment all of the economic disturbance it can, such as the calling of general strikes, laying of boycotts and other political and social resistance. In the hope of reaping ultimately a revolution in England, it has been willing to barter some of its economic resources and commercial offerings to England.

The indignation of British labor over the Arcos house raid is natural because of the communistic contingent which sympathizes with everything Russia does, and remonstrates at everything that can be construed as a wrong to Russia. Russia is excited because it realizes that if nothing sensationally damaging is found in the raid, it is an opportunity to enhance its standing in England and to advance communism among the trade unions. It will bluster somewhat about violation of diplomatic immunities and rights, but that is all bravado. It knows it will accomplish nothing in the shape of either a retraction or amends. It bellows for effect. The British government on the other hand doubtless will stand its ground and make no apologies or redress for its raid. It will suffer some adverse criticism at home, and anti-British demonstrations in Russia because it cannot conceive that it is ever in the wrong in its relations with soviet.

The incident may threaten the treaty relations between the two governments, but they are more likely to survive and the matter terminated without concession by either side. In this event, it will mean that Great Britain is not yet ready to take definite action toward punishing Russia for her secret activities against her, but will bide her time for a better occasion or in the faint hope that she may yet intimidate the soviet into a policy of non-interference.

TENNESSEE DOES WELL

The state of Tennessee has acted very wisely in voting to issue bonds for $1,500,000 to make a huge park out of the Great Smoky Mountain range country. Since this follows North Carolina's action in voting $2,000,000 for the same purpose it now becomes probable that this land will be preserved in its wild beauty for Americans of all time.

There is some work yet to be done. The park association must get several million dollars in private gifts before the park can become a reality. It is said, however, that this money is "practically assured" already.

People familiar with the Great Smoky Mountain region say unhesitatingly that it is one of the most magnificent bits of country in the United States. Although it is within a night's ride of many large cities, it remains very much the same as it was before Columbus reached America. It has escaped the settler, the lumberman, the homesteader. Its forests are thick and quiet; its rivers clear and lonely. On its mountain peaks there is solitude; in its valleys there is the peace of the unspoiled wilderness.

The people of Tennessee and North Carolina have done well. They have been able to see what we Americans so often fail to see; that there are things more important than timber lands or water power sites, and that the intangible values of natural beauty can far outweigh purely material considerations. Because they have seen these things clearly, the Great Smoky Mountains will be a place of refreshment and recreation for us and our children's children. No matter how closely the cities and towns of the east are grouped, there will always remain, within easy distance, this splendid stretch of untamed country, in which tired city people may get away from office and factory and store and, in the hackneyed but expressive phrase, "get back to nature."

The rest of the country owes a debt of gratitude to Tennessee and North Carolina. It also owes the duty of seeing to it that whatever additional money may be needed to make the park a reality is speedily forthcoming.

TRENCH MOUTH IS VINCENT'S ANGINA
Vincent's angina, as well as other oral infections, and the respiratory infections, are on the increase, thinks Dr. Joseph C. Bloodgood. He says this increase is associated with or coincident with over crowding, overheating in winter, the closed automobile, and the increasing number of large audiences in small, badly ventilated rooms and halls.

To Dr. Bloodgood's specifications I would add: The increasing number of large audiences in large, mechanically ventilated, but close and excessively heated moving picture palaces. That is the place where the open face sneezer and the open face cougher get in their deadliest work.

Under the name of "trench mouth" Vincent's angina has certainly increased among the population at large in the last two or three years, if I may judge by the number of inquiries about it from newspaper readers everywhere.

Pursuant to the policy of this department I shall not give a detailed description of Vincent's angina (trench mouth). Suffice it to say that it is a form of sore mouth characterized by ulceration of gums, tongue, lips, inside of cheek, floor of mouth, and sometimes in the throat. The lesions are at first small and grayish and enlarge to a grayish at the center then the grayish material comes away and leaves ulcers.

Vincent's angina has been recognized in America for many years. It naturally occurred among the soldiers in France and there it became known as trench mouth. It is caused by a spirochete, the nature of this organism is not taken from the lesions or ulcers for microscopic examination clinches the diagnosis, although this infection sometimes occurs along with other infections such as diphtheria, syphilis, pyorrhea.

Other mouth conditions sometimes mistaken for "trench mouth" are leukoplakia (tobacco sores, patches), ulcers from injured or broken teeth or crude dentures, tubercular lesions, cancer.

Among the remedies which have been found beneficial for trench mouth (Vincent's angina) are methylene blue, mercuriochrome, asphramine, and sodium perborate.

Sodium perborate is highly praised by Dr. Bloodgood. Each evening he suggests that all dentists, even when a sore mouth is not evident, give a treatment with sodium perborate before and after dental treatment.

For the treatment of trench mouth, make a thick paste of sodium perborate, with water, and spread this paste over all the teeth with the clean fingers. Spread it also over any red or ulcerated areas just around the teeth. Hold this paste in the mouth five minutes. It foams as a result of oxidation. Then rinse the mouth with warm water. Strictly adhere to this routine followed daily will usually cure trench mouth in a week.

If there are lesions in the mouth and throat, in addition to the paste, a thinner solution should be used as a gargle two or three times a day.

Amateur Eugenics

I am 19 and one of five children. We are about the healthiest family in town. But I am "contemplating" marriage with a man aged 22 years, who is one of the family of three children. He has a sister with epilepsy and a younger brother who has some similar spells. His parents were cousins. Would I take a chance in marrying him? (C. L. C.)
Answer—The fact that the parents were cousins is immaterial, except that such unions double the chance of taint in offspring if there is any heritable taint or defect on either side. But I advise you, intelligent daughter, without full knowledge of the family history. You may obtain authoritative and free information and advice on such questions by addressing the Eugenics Record Office, Cold Spring Harbor, N. Y. (if this institution is still in existence—I have not heard anything about it lately).

SERVICE UNIFORMS

Washington, D. C. — The Persistent

rumors of the return of the blue uniform of the United States Army—about nothing official on this is to be obtained from the War Department—brings to mind the good old days when a military parade was a thrill with its colorful uniforms and gleaming accoutrements.

Since the World War the Army has been most circumspect in its O. D. uniforms, and the only concession to the swagger is the roll collar and long trousers, the latter being permitted when an officer is off duty with troops. The Navy and Marine Corps still have their dress uniforms which glitter with gold lace.

The Marine Corps is particularly brilliant on gala occasions, its uniforms having not only much gold lace but considerable red. This is especially true of the boat cloak which is dark blue lined with scarlet. A handsome young lieutenant of the Marines in full regalia is truly a sight to stir the feminine heart.

The Army has not always been so modest in its attire. It passed through many stages, and colors, before reaching its present unassuming state. Before Revolutionary days there were a number of state militancy organizations and many of these had ornate uniforms. In Connecticut the Connecticut Foot-Guard wore scarlet coats, bearskin hats, and brown garters. The City Troop of Philadelphia wore brown, which was rejected in Colonial days and during the Revolution a favorite color for military uniforms. In fact it was ordered by the Continental Congress and adopted by several colonies.

Its popularity was perhaps largely due to the fact that it was more easily obtainable than any other color at that time.

It has been said that in 1772 the number of independent companies in the City of New York showed nearly as great diversity in uniforms as in the designation of commands. The grenadiers and light infantry wore blue with red facings, the fusiliers wore the same with bearskin caps, and the German Jägers the same except that the coats were trimmed with silver lace. The sportsman companies had uniforms of green with crimson facings and small round hats. The prevailing uniform of Colonial times, however, seems to have been blue coats faced with red, with breeches usually of buckskin.

FEW UNIFORMS FOR REVOLUTION

Following the announcement of hostilities it has been written that there was considerable pomp among the military organizations of the cities. There were many inspiring parades and great excitement. At the real seat of war, however, there was little of this. There the fighting was done for the most part by farmers clad in their every-day working clothes although there were a few militiamen scattered here and there.

Reverend William Emerson, who was with the Army, wrote "It is diverting to walk among the camps, he tells us, to see the soldiers in their uniforms. They are as different in their form as they are in their dress, and every tent is a portraiture of the persons who encamp in it. Some are made of boards, and some of sail cloth. Some partly of one, and some partly of the other."

In Washington's army there were not enough uniforms to distinguish the officers from their men and he was therefore obliged to devise badges so that rank might be distinguished at sight. Soon after he took command he issued an order as follows: "As the Continental Army has unfortunately no uniforms, and consequently many inconveniences must arise from not being able to distinguish the commissioned officers from the privates, it is desired that some badges of distinction may be immediately provided, for instance, that the field officers may have red or pink cockades in their hats, the captains yellow or buff, and the subalterns green. They are to furnish themselves accordingly. The sergeants may be distinguished by an epaulette or stripe of red cloth sewed upon their right shoulder, the corporals by one of green."

It is interesting to note that George Washington prescribed as an insignia of rank the stars on the epaulettes of general officers, which are still retained in the United States Army. Also the service stripes which were adopted by General Washington during the Revolution were revived in 1885.

It was not until the end of the Revolution that the uniforms, generally supposed to have distinguished the troops of the American Army, were used. The colors for the dress of general officers were selected by Washington and the close buttoned coat was adopted.

UNIFORM COLORS

Since the days of the Revolution there have been many changes in the uniform of the American Army, but until the World War blue, in one shade or another, has been the most prevalent color. The regulations of 1821 read "Dark blue is the national color, when a different one is not expressly prescribed. All uniforms, coats, whether for officers or enlisted men, will be of that color." The only exception to this appears to have been the West Point cadets, who wore at that time, as now, grey uniforms.

Old prints depicting the uniforms of the various periods make one wonder how it was possible for the soldiers of former days to do any fighting at all. To the uninitiated it would seem that the mere blanching of the many troops of hats used from time to time by the Army must have been about all that could be expected of a man.

It is explained that during actual fighting the men were not as a rule required to comply so strictly with the regulations regarding uniforms. During the Civil War a great many of the volunteer soldiers had pet hats which they not only insisted upon taking with them, but upon wearing in the heat of battle. The love of a particular "kelly" seems always to have been an outstanding characteristic of the male of the species.

It is perhaps little known that at one time the American Army wore what were known officially as "boots." Judging from the tone in which a student of the uniforms of the military organization of this country has written, the term "boots" did not meet with particular favor or among the fighting men of the nation. The boots were in fact a laced shoe extended about four inches above the ankle and replaced the Jefferson shoe which was only two inches above the ankle.

The uniforms and hats of the Army gradually became less elaborate and cumbersome until the more or less modern field uniform of Civil War days appeared. At this time the campaign hat without plumes, cockades, or pompons was used. In fact it was much the same as that used to-day except in color.

The khaki uniform first came into use during the Spanish American War in 1898 and was used in Cuba and in the Philippine Islands. It was not until the World War, however, that the blue uniform of the Army was entirely done away and replaced by the olive drab. Perhaps the most popular change in the uniform is recent years was that from the starched collar to the roll collar which went into effect year before last. It appears to be the modern idea that fighting men must be comfortable even at a sacrifice of impressive glitter.

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Davis

New York—See-sawing up and down Broadway I saw Harry Lauder in a supper club. And some who related the tale that Sir Harry had arrived and, picking up the bill of fare and nothing the $2 cover charge, commented in his Scots brogue: "It's na mirdin, I'll have my dinner without any cover." But then there are so many such tales about Sir Harry.

Saw Ed Howe in from Kansas to be banqueted by prominent Manhattanites. And, somehow, in the formality of these hotel affairs, where it seemed anything but a holiday party, though all made every effort to push informality through the glazed doorways.

Saw Charles Journal stepping from a fine looking car and sauntering to a certain cafe. And if you have never heard Charles's name before, know that he is "the punkin'" about Broadway, being the highest priced and best known head waiter in this man's town. Which means, of course, that his income is doubtless considerably more than that of many of the guests. And they tell me this maestro of the dining halls started playing golf in the winter and defied all traditions, that he had no music, no dance floor and served no liquor, refusing for that fine tradition of dining for the purpose of eating, and that he did a mighty business with this innovation.

Saw Senator Capper, whose several publications are mighty in the Midwest, stepping about the annual newspaper convention and; they do say that nine out of ten New Yorkers when questioned on the subject have never heard of the Capper publications. Yet had the senator or any of his state folk confessed to knowing nothing of The New Yorker, let us say, Manhattanites would scornfully refer to them as "hicks" and such.

Saw Maxwell Anderson, whose play, "Saturday's Children," they tell me, will get the Pulitzer prize, and I hope so for here is a young man who has long devoted himself to worthy creation. And I remember the time out in San Francisco when he was writing editorials for an afternoon newspaper and a most conservative paper it was. And Anderson one day put some liberal thought into the columns and met with dignified rebuke, whereupon he kissed the place and came to Manhattan with his family.

And for a long while it was "not so good," since his esthetic impulses took him to editing a poetry magazine. Just try to raise a family on a poetry magazine. So he took to writing editorials on the World and there he met Laurence Stallars, who was running a book review column, and together they wrote, "What Price Glory?" a play for which, it seemed to me, the Anderson half of the combo never received sufficient credit for some reason or other. Perhaps it was because Stallars wrote another war scenario for Hollywood.

Saw John Ringling about town. But, strange to behold, he was not tradition of circus folk. He was up in the 57th street art bell. And later on, I found that this member of the Ringling Brothers (don't they have it was because Stallars wrote the John Fisk art collection and had purchased a Lippi for $1600 and a little century portrait of Petrarch for $550. Which, doubtless, would cause the late P. T. Barnum to turn in his casket.

Q. What has become of Mary Todd, man, who was formerly a Mack-Bent bathing girl? A. G. L.

A. She died in 1925 of pneumonia.

Q. How much paper is used annually in the printing of newspapers in the United States? J. B. C.

A. Our annual consumption of newsprint is nearly $700,000 tons. How old was Bobb'e Jones when he played in his first golf tournament? H. E. D.

A. He was fourteen.

Q. Will candy soil hold moisture longer than heavy soil? A. K.

A. The Bureau of Soils says that under present soil conditions heavy soils hold the moisture longer than sandy soils. Sandy soils will hold moisture by forming a much on the top to a depth of one or perhaps two inches.

DAUGHTERS OF MIDAS

By Anne Austin

THIS HAS HAPPENED
T. Q. CURTIS, millionaire department store owner, selects three girls from his establishment — BILLY WELLS, NYDA LOMAX and WINNIE SHELTON—to come into his home as his wards for one year because he believes they have worthy ambitions.

BILLY WELLS, who wants to become a concert violinist, is the only one of the three who is serious. The others lie, thereby winning the advantage of his home, wealth and position for the year.

MRS. MEADOWS, widow of a former governor, is acting hostess for the girls. Her nephew, DAL ROMAN, a fascinating man of Oriental appearance, is cleverly "playing up" to all three of the girls, much to the anguish of Billy, who is infatuated with him. When Billy returns to her mother's home for a day's visit, she is asked by his plainness.

CLAY CURTIS, owner of the store, has disinherited himself and is living with the Wells family in the poor section of the town, working in the Truman automobile factory in the daytime and writing music at night. Billy is discouraged because PROPER NAVRATIL tells her she will have to wait five years before she can attain her goal.

At the luncheon table, Billy learns that Dal and Winnie Sheltan are going skating. When Dal includes her and Nyda in the invitation, both refuse, though Billy is tormented with the knowledge that Winnie will have Dal o herself. Billy learns she is the only one of the three girls invited to the Bradleys to a dance. Ralph Truman asks her to go.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXV
When Billy went to her room to change the autumn leaf evening dress for an afternoon frock, she was reminded by the telephone on her dark walnut secretary that she should telephone her mother the added report of Navratil on her playing third time of the piece. She lifted the receiver and the phone was an extension—and was startled to hear Nyda's voice, sharp and angry, rapping out a peremptory command. "Now, listen, Eddie. I've told you not to call me here. I'll meet you like I promised."

Billy replaced the receiver as noiselessly as possible. So Winnie had been right. Nyda was going out with Banning. But why did she want to lie about it? T. Q. had made it very plain that the chauffeur would be welcomed in his home, as a sweetheart of Nyda's. And Nyda had been entirely had been engaged to Eddie Banning. Why, everyone in the store knew that.

Of course, Billy mused, the agreement which the girls had signed had specifically stated that they were not to marry during the year. But an engagement was not a marriage. Perhaps Nyda looked higher than Eddie Banning now. But if she had broken off the engagement in the hope of snaring bigger game, why did she meet him clandestinely?

Billy shrugged and gave it up as a hopeless puzzle. She dialed the number and began to practice the scales to which Navratil had sentenced her.

She had played for only five minutes when Mrs. Meadows, in a purple silk negligee, knocked at her door and sweetly asked:

"So sorry to interrupt you, my dear, but would you mind practicing in the music room downstairs? I always take an afternoon nap, and since my room is just across the hall from yours—" She paused, delicately, with uplifted brows and an ingratiating but somehow unfriendly smile in her faded eyes.

"Certainly. I'm so sorry I disturbed you," Billy apologized.

"About the dance tonight, dear girl," Mrs. Meadows stepped into the room, shut the door and lowered her voice confidentially. "As an artist, a person of very great talent, you will undoubtedly be asked into homes that will not welcome Nyda and Winnie. They are dear girls, of course, but not—not quite—"

"Neither am I, Mrs. Meadows," Billy cut in flatly. "If I receive invitations from the inner circle, I'll not suffer any illusions about it. I'll know I'm expected to pay my way with my fiddle. Good practice, I suppose—get me used to a high-hat audience."

"Don't be difficult, my dear," Mrs. Meadows shrugged, then surprised the girl by turning back to her and kissing her on the cheek.

"Now why," Billy thought, her hand unconsciously going to her cheek, "why did she do that? She doesn't look as if she really cares two whoops about any of us. What's she up to? Oh, I'm getting to be a cat!" and suspicious little beast! Get wise to yourself, Billy!"

She marched down the stairs, lugging her precious violin, a sheaf of music and the tall iron stand to hold the sheets. The music room was the first room on the left of the hall, opposite the drawing room, and opening into the library, where T. Q. had been in the habit of spending most of his leisure hours.

She was absorbed in her playing, her brow furrowed with a frown of concentration as she tried to recall all of the criticisms Navratil had made of her fingering and bowing, when a voice paralyzed her bow wrist, stiffening the fluttering fingers of her left hand into graceful rigidity.

"Mignon! May I interrupt for just a moment?" That low, caressing, deep voice that was like no other in the world.

She did not hear his footsteps on the soft, thick rug. Before she knew that he was near, he stood before her, his black eyes smiling somberly. His lean, brown, satin-smooth hand took the hand that was still curved

Blonde Or Brunet--Women May Be What They Please
Fair Sex Will Not Worry About Curls This Summer

GERTRUDE LAWRENCE'S WHIM-SICAL BOITH WIG

BY JULIA BLANSHARD
NEW YORK—Wigs for the well-dressed woman is fashion's latest gesture.

Inaugurated by Paris, sponsored by stage use, wigs apparently have come into vogue as the most up-to-date of summer accessories.

Of course they are not the fantastic colored silk wigs in glowing pinks, yellows, and greens of last season. Indeed not.

Nor yet are they the colonial white wigs that return ever and anon as seasonal fads.

Wigs of 1927 are so natural looking, they defy detection. And of course, they serve a purpose.

First, they look real because they are made with skin and care from the finest human hair. The trick of many of them is that they are actually made from the hair of the head of the woman who wears them.

SALVAGE

For it is quite the thing for milady to dig up that "wad" of hair the barber cut off the first time she got a bob and have it transformed into a wig for summer use.

Second, these little works of art really serve a purpose. In this outdoor age, almost every woman of fashion indulges in some form of sports, tennis, golfing or swimming. And brand and water, necessitate constant curling of the hair if milady would be stylish.

Last season it was quite all right for the close-cropped boyish bob to be straight and mannish looking. This season, with the advent of the more feminine bob, it is distinctly not the thing to have straight hair. Lunch-ions, teas or evening parties call for a feminine bob that goes well with the soft, supple lines of formal gowns.

Here is where the wig functions. For with a becoming wig all curled and waiting on her dressing table, the athletic woman can indulge her athletic inclinations to the utmost, with never a worry about the havoc wind or water plays with her "permanent" wave.

So the little fatherweight wig is said to give more freedom from grooming cares to the woman who loves outdoor sports.

PERSONALITIES

A third advantage is said to accrue from the wig's advent. Women can change their personalities—have several in fact, from using wigs.

"Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" is now legend. But many a skeptic still would like to see for herself. Though for naturals, the most women who use wigs will probably know to shades that blend with their coloring. It is possible to try out various other complexions.

But, granting that milady sticks to her own shade of hair, there is still ample room for her to experiment in different effects with wigs.

For there are curling wigs, curled wigs, straight wigs with chic bobbed parts, wigs with Janice Meredith curls, wigs that illustrate every one of the new "sculptured" bobs, and wigs that have bangs. And over and above all the bobbed wigs, are the very newest wigs—wigs of long hair that can transform the day-time athletic girl into the demure "clinging vine" for the dinner and dance.

And so the new accessories bring naturalness, freedom and a chance to change personality. It is no wonder they are having a vogue!

SATIN BLOUSES
The separate satin blouse in shades of parchment, Nile green, rose beige and fawn is in high favor for wear with separate skirts.

LINEN SUIT
A novel import is a printed linen skirt and jacket of ray pinks with a white crepe de chine blouse banded in the linen.

NEW SASHES
Belts are all important now and the latest addition to summer frocks are broad, crushed belts of silk that tie like old-fashioned sashes.

NATURAL BELTLINE
Latest models show an increasing tendency to place belts at the regulation waistline. One Jenny model has three belts—one at waistline, one at hips and one above beltline.

FLOWERED ORGANDY
Flowered organdy stands a good chance of being among the most popular of the summer materials. It is combined with cream or colored lace.

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

THE pony race was full of thrills and Danfydd expected spills, but all the Tinsies hung on tight and no one took a flop. First one would take the lead, and then the other'd slip ahead again. Then Scouty loudly shouted, "Say, I wonder when we'll stop."

"Oh, what's the diff?" someone replied. "I really like this sort of ride. We don't know where we're going but we're sure on our way. Why I could sit and ride like this, as long as nothing goes amiss, and really think it's fun."

wonderful throughout the live-long day."

Just then they heard a sound behind and quickly turned around to find that a dog was on a horse and keeping right close by. "Say, this is great," the old man said. "I see a big fence just ahead. The bunch of us can jump it clear if we will only try."

The ponies headed for this fence, and kept the Tinsies in suspense. They wondered if they'd make it, or go tumbling to the ground. And then they sailed up in the air, and Danfydd shouted, "Have a care! Just hang on to your ponies, and they'll take it with a bound."

The ponies made the jump real quick and all the Tinsies thought it slick. Said Clowny, "Oh, I see a stream. I'd like to take a dip." Of course he didn't know that he would soon be where he wished to be. But, anyhow, real shortly, something made his pony slip.

The little pony gave one snort, threw up his feet and stopped real short. Poor Clowny went sprawling, like a kite, or wind-blown hat. Before the others stopped to think, they saw him hit the stream—bump! He landed in a shallow place and there the poor lad sat.

(The Tinsies have a Hippo ride in the next story.)

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY

BREAKFAST—Sliced bananas and strawberries with cereal and milk, poached eggs on graham toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Diplomatic pie, graham bread and butter sandwiches, fruit salad, rolled oats cookies, milk, tea.

DINNER—Roast leg of lamb, mint sauce, new potatoes in cream sauce, buttered peas and carrots, asparagus salad, pineapple sherbet, sunshine cake, milk, coffee.

The diplomatic pie is just a glorified arrangement of left-overs. It can be served in individual baking dishes or one large one. The housekeeper who manages her left-overs cleverly can afford better food to begin with than the one who wastes what is left after each meal.

Diplomatic Pie

One cup diced left-over meat, 1 cup diced carrots, 1/2 cup tiny onions, 1/2 cup strained canned tomatoes, 2 cups mashed potatoes, 1 tablespoon butter, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons milk, white 1 egg.

Combine meat, carrots, onions and tomato juice. Add boiling water to cover and simmer until tender. If the vegetables have not been previously cooked they should be almost tender before adding the meat. Season mixture with salt and pepper and thicken with flour stirred to a smooth paste with a little cold water. It will probably take about 1/2 cup of flour. Add flour to thicken the liquid to the consistency of gravy. Season hot mashed potatoes with butter, salt and milk and fold in the egg white beaten until stiff and dry. Put the meat and vegetable and gravy mixture into a buttered baking dish, cover with prepared hot sauce and bake in a moderately hot oven until the potato mixture puffs and browns on top.

Household Hints

MILK CUSTARDS
Soft custards, with white of egg floating on top, or baked custards in vanilla, coffee, orange or almond flavor give children both milk and eggs and are often more tempting to them than either food alone.

WHERE THE WERE
Said the modern girl to the old-fashioned man: "Next week I'm going to Paris for some clothes."

"Ah!" he replied in a moderately hot even until the potato mixture puffs and browns on top.

"I wondered where you'd left them."

—TIT-BITS.

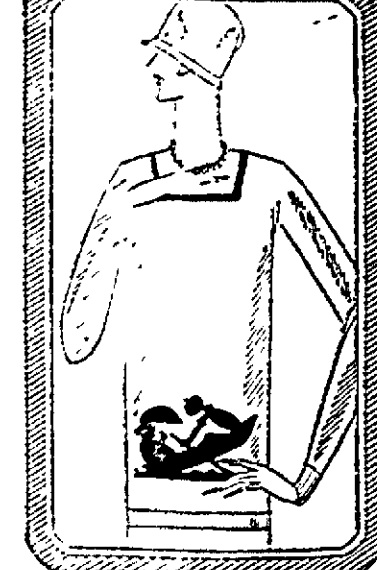

THE LAST TIME
"I'll never ask another woman to marry me as long as I live."

"Refused again?"

"No, accepted." —TIT-BITS.

BEAUTIES BEG FOR BONNETS

After crowning a queen's head with one of her bonnet creations, a Paris milliner has announced that she will not make the chapeau for those who do not become. The bonnet has the effect of being pushed off the forehead, giving the wearer the appearance of a startled baby. It is said that many beauties are pathetic in their pleas for one of the head coverings, which naturally have become the rage.

SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

"Now, Mr. Anderson," Churchill advanced upon the witness, a sheaf of notes in his hand, "You have testified here that the defendant, Mrs. Wiley, cried out to her husband, 'You made me do it.' Had there been anything in her previous conversation to indicate to you what she meant by 'it'?"

"No," Anderson answered solemnly. "You did not hear the defendant say anything about having killed your friend, Ralph Cluny, did you?"

"No! I don't know what she was talking about," Anderson muttered. "You did not hear Mrs. Wiley say 'I didn't want to marry you. You made me do it'?"

"I don't remember," Anderson muttered, glancing as if for help toward the district attorney.

"Let you be positive about what you do remember?" Churchill prodded him.

"Yes, I am."

"And yet, Mr. Anderson, you testified on this stand that the actual words that Mrs. Wiley used were 'To think I got rid of Ralph Cluny for a thing like you?' Which is correct, Mr. Anderson?"

"They're both the same," Anderson retorted, flushing more darkly than ever in his confusion.

"If you are so sure your memory is not quite so good as you would have us believe," Churchill smiled, "Now, Mr. Anderson, I will try to refresh your memory. Didn't Mrs. Wiley actually say to her husband, in the conversation which you overheard, 'To think I jilted a man like Ralph Cluny for a thing like you?' I ask you, didn't she use the word 'jilted' rather than the expression, 'got rid of'?"

"I don't know which she said but she meant she'd got rid of him," Anderson retorted desperately, squirming in his chair.

"You are acquainted with the meaning of the word 'jilted,' Mr. Anderson?" Churchill smiled.

"Sure I am."

"Is it not possible, Mr. Anderson, that you unconsciously substituted the phrase 'got rid of' to a phrase which you yourself are likely to use, for the more unfamiliar term 'jilted'?"

"I don't know—maybe," Anderson conceded solemnly.

"Now, Mr. Anderson, when Mr. and Mrs. Wiley came to you for lodgings on their wedding night, they made no effort to conceal their identity from you, did they?"

"I reckon they didn't," Anderson muttered.

"They made no objection to showing you their wedding certificate, I suppose, giving their names in full?" Churchill demanded, with a glance of triumph toward the jury.

COLLEEN MOORE LIFTS "EXTRA" GIRL TO LONG-TERM CONTRACT

BY DAN THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Gretchen Young worked as an "extra" girl in Colleen Moore's last picture. Colleen decided that who was a good trooper—which in Hollywood means that a girl can act, will try anything and never complain.

John McCormick, Colleen's husband and production manager for First National, was duly advised of the young girl's possibilities. And—

Gretchen Young is still thanking Miss Moore for securing her a long-term contract. But Colleen assures me she had nothing to do with it.

"All I did was mention her to John," she declares. "He came on the set a few times and watched her work and then, looked at some of her shots on the screen and signed her to a contract. Anyone else on the lot would have done as much as I did."

Miss Young is modest, almost to the point of shyness. She has tremendous large eyes that photograph beautifully. And, although still in her teens, she has a foundation of several years "extra" work. She also is an exceptionally brilliant girl.

"My experience around picture lots has been almost equal to a college education," Gretchen told me. "In fact, I have it is more valuable in this game. I have had opportunities to watch many stars on the sets and have listened to the advice directors gave them. That advice, given to them, has proven very valuable to me also."

"I have noticed, too, the manner in which stars accept criticism from their directors. The ones who immediately become temperamental usually are the ones who have 'clicked' in one picture. The really big stars welcome criticism. It is of a constructive nature. Most of them are so anxious to do just as their directors want that they live almost in fear of them."

"Seeing real stars working like extra girls is one of the finest experiences a person may have. It has shown me just what to do in case I am ever in that class. My frequent talks with important players between scenes have been invaluable, too. They have told me many things that have improved my playing considerably."

First National officials believe they have a real "find" in Gretchen Young. They already are making plans to push her to the limit—but not too fast, because too quick ascension spells certain death.

WEDDINGS AND DADS--

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

IN the spring the road to Dover is usually crowded. And this spring is no exception. The highways and byways are turning to honeymoon lanes and bearing their usual quota of eloping couples to marrying parlors.

When love grows impatient it often seeks the book without the bell. Orange blossoms, Lohengrin, and rice are all very well, but often they are expensive. Joke as you like about Able having real oranges at his wedding so they might be eaten afterwards, and Sandy having the ceremony in the backyard so the chickens could eat the rice—there is more truth than poetry in the fact that the high price of marrying is shocking.

I know a girl (who is buying her trousseau) who has said she never so much as hints at the fact that the things are for a wedding. "If I say I'm a bride-to-be, either they won't show me ordinary things or up goes the price until I feel like murdering somebody."

It struck me as being very sensible. And this is not all this rather unusual girl said to me: "Dad would let me have a big church wedding reception at the club and everything, but I know that to do it he and Mother would do without things for the next two years to make up for it. They haven't much money and besides there are Lon and Dorrie. They'll be coming along. Dorrie is still in college and I know what Dad's had to pay to educate Lon and me."

I wonder how many girls are thinking of Dad and Mother and what they have had to do without to pay for expensive education and all the things that modern times say young people must have—Weddings among them. I do not recommend the Dover road. I have an old-fashioned belief that marriage is a home institution. But simplicity of wedding ceremonies is something we are getting away from and which it is not too late to go back to.

Expensive dressmakers, expensive decorators, expensive caterers, expensive everything! There rings in my ears her words, "Dad and Mother."

I wonder how many June brides are thinking only of their own happiness, or whether there will be anything left for Dad and Mother when the wedding is over.

Physical culture classes for the grey-headed are being formed in London, and already grandmothers, aunts, and uncles and parents are learning to bend and twist to the thump of the piano. In one class are about 25 women, whose only indication of their years is their silvered hair. It is conducted by seventy-year-old Colonel George Cruden. The eldest pupil is 73 and the spryness with which the "knees bend" and other commands are followed is surprising. Most of the pupils are office workers who are trying to keep "fit."

Mission House Preacher Faces Busy Program at Anniversary Program

Kaukauna—Prof. F. Greyer D. D. of the Reformed Mission college at Plymouth will have a busy day when he comes to the fortieth anniversary celebration of Immanuel Reformed church Sunday. He is scheduled to give four addresses during the day, including a short talk to the Sunday school children. He has chosen the interesting subject of "A Child Lost Among the Jack Pines of the Black-foot Hills" for his talk to the children. He will preach the jubilee sermon in English at 10 o'clock and in German at 11 o'clock. He also will speak at the social gathering for members of the church and their friends at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Posters from parishes in Green Bay, Oshkosh, Pottersville, Appleton and Dale will take at this meeting. A cafeteria luncheon will be served the guests and friends of the church.

Thirty-five years ago the congregation appropriated $2,500 for the purchase of fifteen acres of high land a short distance southwest of the city. This was five years after the organization of the church in 1857. Later the half of this land was sold. The cemetery became known as the Union cemetery.

Two years later a school house was built with the assistance of the Ladies Aid society. In 1895 the church building was brick veneered and a church bell was purchased.

The Rev. F. Aigner, the first pastor of the church, served the congregation from 1890 to 1903. During the summer of the latter year, the Rev. O. Engelman was called.

The Rev. Mr. Engelman served the congregation for three years and in 1907 the Rev. R. Most succeeded him. During the time the Rev. Most was pastor the congregation declared itself self-sustaining.

In 1910, the present pastor, the Rev. E. L. Worthman was called from the Theological seminary at Plymouth. He preached his first sermon at Kaukauna the first Sunday in June of that year.

In 1912 the church consistory decided that services should be held in English every two weeks. Up until that time services were conducted in German only. The Sunday school was divided into German and English classes.

The Rev. E. L. Worthman resigned in 1915 and the Rev. E. Opperman was named his successor. Two years later the congregation again called Mr. Worthman.

In 1918 a pipe organ was purchased and the church building was remodeled and enlarged. Special provision was made in the remodeled church for a choir room and a minister's study. Included in the new church equipment was a pulpit, altar and side chairs, a choir stand, Bible stand, hymn boards, collection plates, baptismal font, mirrors, a Communion table and a new furnace.

During the past five years stained glass windows have been installed and the sun parlor has been built to the porch.

Three young men from the church are studying for the ministry at the present time. They are Carl Grimm, Alfred Klumb and Kenneth Newman.

There are now 323 confirmed members of the church and 146 families.

Present church officers are: the Rev. E. L. Worthman, pastor; J. J. Haas, president; William Klumb, Sr., elder; Herman Paschen, elder; Paul Ott, elder; John Henningsen, deacon; Wilhelm Erickson, deacon; Arthur Kuehl, deacon; Norman Gorham, deacon; Fred Grimmer, deacon and Frank Toussay, deacon.

SMITH TAKES TRACK
TEAM TO STATE MEET

Coach Is Quite Well Pleased With His Showing in DePere Trail

Kaukauna—Kaukauna High school will be represented at the state track and field meet to be held at Madison Saturday. Coach William Smith will take a squad of about ten men, including the first relay team, to the meet. The relay team won first place in the Northeastern Wisconsin interscholastic track and field meet at DePere Saturday. Members of the team are: Eder, Ferguson, McFadden and Ludke. Practice will be had on the track and Thursday afternoon the team will engage in a practice meet at the municipal playgrounds in connection with the Park-Nicolet meet. Coach Smith will select his entries for Madison after the meet.

The junior conference Saturday proved that small schools can turn out as strong and capable teams as the larger state schools. In comparing Saturday's marks with those made in the Fox River valley conference meet, the junior circuit had better marks in seven of the thirteen events. The smaller schools were superior in the 100 yard dash, the 200, 120 high hurdles, the 200 low hurdles, the pole vault, the high jump and the shot put. It is understood that Van Sistine of West DePere has tossed the discus further than 114 ft. in. In previous years but this was superior to win first place for the Nicolet school Saturday.

The Rev. Mr. Engelman served the congregation for three years and in 1907 the Rev. R. Most succeeded him. During the time the Rev. Most was pastor the congregation declared itself self-sustaining.

In 1910, the present pastor, the Rev. E. L. Worthman was called from the Theological seminary at Plymouth. He preached his first sermon at Kaukauna the first Sunday in June of that year.

SENATE COMMITTEE HEARS ARGUMENTS ON NEW TAX BILL

Would Assess $5 Income Tax Against Every Person in the State

Madison—(P)—The joint finance committee will hold the center of the stage Tuesday afternoon with a hearing on several important senate and assembly bills. Few other committees have work scheduled.

Senator Keppel's bill calling for a minimum income tax of $5 from each person in Wisconsin earning a living and between the ages of 21 and 60 with exceptions for those persons having others dependent upon their support, heads the list.

A bill by Senator Gettelman asking that husbands be exempt from certain inheritance taxes upon the death of a wife will also be reviewed. The bill would allow the husband the same right of tax exemption when inheriting money from his wife as the wife now receives under similar circumstances.

WANTS PRISON PROBE

Senator Polakowski, apparently not convinced by the results of the last two prison investigations at Waupun, will defend his bill asking for another investigation by an interim committee. The senator recently suggested on the floor of the senate that the present investigating committee "make a third trip because the second tour proved to be a revealing one."

Senator Cashman will have his chance to defend his measure asking that rural schools be allowed to teach advanced courses for the benefit of those individuals who might not otherwise be able to receive the benefits of higher education. This bill is up for hearing before the committee on education and public welfare.

The committee on state and local government will hear arguments on several assembly originated bills relating to fishing, including bills concerned with the removal of rough, injurious fish, the use of pound nets, closed seasons and other matters, and game refuge. Assemblyman Hillier, Racine, will defend his bill relating to the establishment of a fish hatchery in either Racine, Kenosha or Walworth-co.

The only assembly committee hearings, other than those to be in connection with the joint committee on finance, will be held by the committee on public welfare. The assemblymen will review Senator Teasdale's bill relating to the transportation of persons in motor vehicles for immoral purposes. The bill, which has passed the senate, provides for the conviction of automobiles in much the same manner as in the case of prohibition enforcement rules.

STAGE AND SCREEN

MODERN PITFALLS OF SOCIETY ARE FILMED

"The Truthful Sex," a remarkable story of the pitfalls which beset young married couples in modern society, at the New Bijou today and Wednesday. The picture is a Columbia release, directed by Richard Thomas, with Huntley Gordon, Mae Busch and a cast of notable players.

The story is an unusual account of a typical couple in society who gradually find themselves growing apart. How a baby and a burglar unwittingly reunite them and straighten out a snarled marital tangle, goes to build a most entertaining picture.

Aside from the principals the cast includes such stars as Ian Keith, John Roche, Rosemary Theby, Joan Meredith, Leo White, Richard Travers and Bill Kent Schaeffer. The director was Richard Thomas and the story was written by Albert Sheiby Levine. Amusing incidents give the necessary touch of humor to a theme that is packed with action, romance and suspense. Director Thomas has done his work with a subtlety that is peculiarly characteristic and the result has more than pleased the public.

WANT RETAINING WALL TO PROTECT MASON-ST

Plans for several street improvements will be completed by the engineer's office and submitted to the common council for approval Wednesday evening, according to L. M. Schindler, city engineer. Among these plans are a retaining wall on S. Mason-st, sewer on Teulab-ave and sidewalk on N. El Dorado-st.

The retaining wall on S. Mason-st will extend for 125 feet along the east side of Mason-st on north and south of the viaduct, and for 90 feet on W. Fourth-st. The wall will prevent the mud and silt from high ground east of the street from being carried over the sidewalk and street in heavy rain storms.

The sewer on S. Teulab-ave will extend from E. Candace-st to E. John-st. Plans for the sidewalk on El Dorado-st also include filling to raise the street to a proper level. The sidewalk will be built between Catherine and Wood-sts.

CAT GOES CHEAP

Leningrad—Midnight, after symphonies are heard her now. Raging parties spurred by the State Clothing Syndicate's offer of 50 cents a cat fur, have made the city's feline population almost extinct. Despite protests of citizens who have lost their pets, the company claims the campaign is a worthy one, making fur coats cheap.

THE TIGER -- SAVAGE STAR OF CIRCUS

"Way Up," the giant Siberian tiger, direct from the steppes of Siberia is the star attraction of the menagerie of the Christy Brothers circus which is to be in Appleton Thursday for two performances. "Way Up" is the only wild animal that has ever successfully resisted all efforts of the trainers to subdue it. The tiger cub at birth is very small, not much larger than a large rat. The hunters of the Christy Brothers circus have shown them with their mother when the male cubs measured 8 feet 4 inches in length and the females about 7 feet 6 inches. The average length of a full grown male is about 9 feet 6 inches. "Way Up" the savage mankiller measures 10 feet 11 inches.

Honest! This Groom Did Not Know Name Of Bride

"And the bride's name?" It was John E. Hantschel, county clerk, speaking. The question was addressed to a prospective groom who was applying for a marriage license. The date was quite recent, and the place was the office of the county clerk, of course.

"Uh—uh—by gosh, Mr. Clerk, I don't know her name," answered the groom-to-be.

"What?" queried the perplexed Mr. Hantschel. "Don't you know the name of the girl you are going to marry?"

"Sure, I know the girl all right, but I can't think of her name just now," stammered the blushing customer. "Just a minute, though, and I'll call up and find out."

He did. Whether his future better half was mortified, angry, or just surprised when the man of her choice asked her her name is not known, but suffice it to say that Mr. Groom-to-be found out the name and was able to complete his business with the county clerk.

When the customer left, Mr. Hantschel returned to his desk in wonderment. Having issued marriage licenses for quite a few years, he has been witness to many amusing incidents. But never before, so far as he can remember, did a near-groom, or a near-bride for that matter, not know the name of the other party to the transaction.

Whether the lapse of memory on the part of this particular customer was the result of extraordinary embarrassment, or whether this man wooed the girl on such short notice that he did not have time to find out her name, Mr. Hantschel could not say. In fact he has given up trying to advance an explanation.

Although this incident was perhaps more or less amusing, something else happened that same week which lowered the clerk's spirits considerably.

A man had been married for only a week, and who by the way had secured his marriage license from Mr. Hantschel, returned to the latter's office to inquire how he could get a divorce.

"Why, you've only been married a week," the clerk responded to the question on divorce.

"I know," said the other, "but she's not the woman for me. I discovered that the first day I was married to her. There is no use of trying to carry on any longer."

After Mr. Hantschel saw that this man was intent upon carrying out his resolution, he referred him to the proper authorities.

"I hope not many of 'my couples' part ways like this one did," he mused.

GOOD SCOTCH

A little Scotch boy, having become an uncle at the age of 4, was taken to see the new baby. "What's he saying, Sandy?" asked his sister as the infant made the usual gurgling noises.

Sandy glanced warily about the room, then replied: "She's sayin', 'Give Sandy an apple.'"—Pathfinder.

NO TORONTO PEACHES

Toronto—There will be no parallels to the "Peaches" Browning adoption case in Toronto. A law has been passed which will prevent adoption by males of any female under age, except in special circumstances approved by the Attorney General. Even the consent of the parents is not sufficient grounds for issuing permission for such an adoption.

Blemished Skin Clears Up Quickly

Sunshine and wind are not always so kind to us. When dainty complexion and hands are exposed to their burning and roughening effect they become freckled, tanned or discolored; usually in spots.

A minute's care will whiten the skin again. Simply squeeze the juice of two lemons into a three-ounce bottle of Archaic White, which you can get from your nearest store, and massage the complexion and hands with this lotion.

You will be delighted with the way it clears your skin and revives its youthful charm.

3 ORANGE ATHLETES IN 3-LETTER CLASS

Johnston, Pfefferle, Strutz,
Win Honors in Every Major
Sport

The present track season the first real track attempt by Appleton high school since 1924, has made three athletes of the school three-letter men. As there are only three sports, football, basketball and track, in which the Orange men have the opportunity to earn letters at present the three-letter honor is the highest in the school.

The three lettermen are, or will be when the track awards are made, Norbert Pfefferle, a senior, 1926 football captain; Orville Strutz, a junior, captain of the 1927 cage squad, and Chester Johnston, a junior, all-Valley conference fullback. Pfefferle performed at end and tackle at football for three years and at guard and basketball the same length of time. Twice he has finished second to Johnston in the javelin event in the quad meet at Green Bay. Johnston is all-Valley fullback. In basketball, his first year at the game, he played a sub forward and got into the fray enough to earn a letter. He will be back next year for his third of football, second basketball and second track. Last year he broke three conference track records unofficially while ineligible. This year he broke the same three in every meet he entered for a sure 15 points for the Orange. He now holds the 100 mark of 16.5, the shot of 43 ft 8 inch, and the broad jump of 24 ft 1 1/2 inch and is in line for the 1928 track captaincy.

Two other Orange athletes probably will enter the three-letter class next year, while several others have chances. Kruse is a letterman in football and track and played on the second cage squad. R. Kuntz, as a sophomore on the second football and basketball squads, and is a point winner in the half mile. Others who will have good chances at three letters next year are Bowby, Popp and Rafoth.

TWO FOR APPLETON
In the four years since the Valley meet has been held Appleton has won it twice, in 1924 and 1927. Manitowish copped in 1925 and West Green Bay last year. Appleton has a fine chance to make it two straight and three in five next year with Johnston's 15 points, Kuntz, Kruse, Roemer, R. Kuntz, Van Ryzin, Popp, Strutz and others and the revived interest in track. Losses include Navarre, mile champ, Steinberg, Lutz and Pfefferle.

PETTIBONE TEAM HALTS WIN STREAK OF SPORTS

The winning streak of the Valley Sports football team, which had reached 12 this season without a defeat, was halted temporarily by a tie game Monday afternoon with the Pettibone-Peabody Co. team. The game ended in an 8-8, 7-inning tie when the P-P team refused to play the extra frames. The game was called for seven innings.

Lutz and Kuntz hurried for the Sports, with Duffner receiving. Bolling and J. formed the Pettibone battery. Shapiro clouted a homer for the Sports. For games with the Sports, managers are requested to call J. Shapiro at 2033 or S. Hilkowitz at 1660.

WATER SOFTENING IN CANNING URGED

State Board of Health Recommends Zeolite Process or Lime-soda Method

Madison, (P)—Water softening processes in canning plants as a means of improving quality are advocated by L. F. Warrick, assistant sanitary engineer of the state board of health.

Certain simple tests for evaluating the hardness of any water supply which can be employed successfully by any cannery are outlined by Mr. Warrick. He recommends a complete mineral analysis be made by a competent chemist in testing for the hardness of a canning plant water supply.

Waters were classified according to their hardness as follows (1) "Soft water"—less than 50 parts per million hardness; (2) "slightly hard"—50 to 100 parts per million hardness; (3) "very hard"—more than 200 parts per million.

"Most of the well waters in Wisconsin," said the sanitary engineer, "would be included under the last two classifications, since the average hardness is about 200 parts per million. In general, the hardness seldom exceeds 200 parts per million or 11.7 grains per gallon that the canner finds by hardness tests or mineral analyses, that the water supply has a total hardness less than 200 parts per million, or 11.7 grains per gallon, softening for pea canning purposes will probably be unnecessary, or of insufficient value to warrant the expense for softening equipment and its operation. With beans the toughening effect of hard water is even more pronounced; and it is often desirable to soften 'slightly hard' water."

Two methods for softening water, the zeolite process and the lime-soda method, were recommended.

COMBINED LOCKS BALL TEAM BEATS KAUKAUNA

Kaukauna — The Combined Locks Juniors defeated Kaukauna Sunday, 20-8. J. Stein of the Juniors allowed eight hits and walked five. Nathrop of the Juniors was the heavy man with the war club gathering five hits. The Juniors collected 28 hits. Brooks and Miller featured for the Kaw city crew. Three hurlers worked for the losers. Teams desiring games with the Juniors should write Andrew Stein, route 7, Appleton.

The bathing beauty contest promises to draw participation of every post. More than $4,000 in prizes will be awarded to the four winning beauties after the judging, presumably the third evening of the convention. FARMERS BOYCOTT TRUCKS

Farm produce agents in the vicinity of Sydney, N. Z., have decided to use horse-drawn vehicles exclusively in hauling hay, straw and chaff to the market. The decision was reached at a meeting of the farmers held recently in Sydney, it being argued that trucks would eat forage while auto trucks would not, and a steady demand for forage should be built up. It was also claimed that within a radius of eight miles horses had proved to be more economical than motors.

COUNCIL TO HEAR PROPOSAL TO BUY TUBE CO. BUILDING

Mayor Will Disapprove Purchase if It Is to Be Paid for This Year

Purchase of the Seamless Tube company plant, 923 W. Spencer-st., is expected to be brought to the attention of the common council at its meeting Wednesday evening. A group of aldermen favoring the purchase of this building and using it for a city tool house probably will bring the matter before the meeting.

The plant was sold May 2 at $100,000 to C. L. Marston, trustee, for $31,445.72 and it has been stated that Mr. Marston offered the city the building at the same figure. Mr. Marston denied he had made the city any offer on the plant but he admitted that he talked about the matter with several city officials.

Mayor C. Rule stated that Mr. Marston had never placed a definite price on the building but that he said the bond holders would have a meeting and set a price. Mayor Rule said if the aldermen proposed to buy the building and use it for a city tool house, he would not approve the purchase, but if some means of acquiring the building at once and paying for it at a future date could be arranged, and the price was within reason, the mayor stated he might favor the purchase.

Aldermen who favor the purchase point to the alleged need for storage space for city street equipment. The present headquarters are not satisfactory, they say, because much of the expensive city equipment must be stored in the open where it is exposed to the elements which causes a material decrease in its value.

Mayor Rule offered a plan for building another series of sheds to adjoin the present barns on the stock fair grounds on S. Walnut-st. The additions would form a rectangular enclosure which could be used for the storage of city street equipment. The plan was approved by the aldermen and the mayor estimated that the cost of the buildings would be $7,000, the mayor estimated.

Those favoring the purchase of the Tube company building however declared that the stock fair grounds are needed as parking room for farmers who come to Appleton and trade. They advocate wrecking the present barns and purchasing the Seamless Tube building.

"When the last stock fair was held the entire grounds were covered by automobiles, trucks and wagons of farmers, one alderman said. "In addition, Walnut-st. and the alleys just off College-ave. were blocked by more cars and trucks and all traffic was in a jam. This condition could be prevented by moving the Seamless Tube company building for a tool house."

Another entrance which will be improved is located about the center of the park on W. Prospect-ave. at the end of S. Mueller-st. The curb must be removed and the road must be graded to the level of the road on the park. It is expected this work will be started next week.

The Clintonville man was driving his car north on S. Cherry-st. as an automobile piloted by Paul Fahrner, Menasha, approached from the north. The vehicles collided on the bridge.

The left side was dented, the front axle was bent, and both fenders on the left side and the running board were damaged on the Bloch machine. Bloch pleaded guilty of reckless driving when arraigned Tuesday morning in municipal court, and was fined $10 and costs. He paid.

AWARD PLAINTIFF $50 IN HIS $500 SUIT FOR DAMAGES

Little Chute Driver Was Negligent, Jury Holds in Decision

Finding one of the defendants, Alfred Anderson, Little Chute, guilty of negligence, a jury of 12 men about 10 o'clock Monday night awarded Louis Vogel, Kaukauna, $50 in his $500 damage suit against Anderson and Nicholas Gerrits, Little Chute. The case opened in the higher branch of municipal court Monday morning before Judge Theodore Berg.

An automobile accident last July 13 at the corner of Main and Fourth-sts., Little Chute, precipitated the lawsuit. The plaintiff's wife and son, in the car with him at the time of the collision, were injured, he alleged.

The defendants, it was alleged, operated the car, carelessly and negligently, and drove at a high rate of speed as they approached the plaintiff's car. The machine occupied by the defendants was loaned to them by Robert Esslinger, Little Chute, the owner, the complaint stated. Anderson was the driver.

When the defendants' vehicle was near that of the plaintiff's, it suddenly turned to the left, in front of the plaintiff's car, without any warning, thereby causing the collision; it was alleged. Damages to the plaintiff's car and hospital and physician's bills totaled approximately $500, he alleged.

The jury retired about 10 o'clock, turned out a verdict about 10 o'clock. The jury consisted of William Van Wyk, 905 E. Wisconsin-ave.; H. H. Brookhaus, 1037 E. Wisconsin-ave.; William Tornow, 1612 N. Appleton-st.; Rudolph H. Radtke, 1121 N. Superior-st.; Roland H. Wuerger, 738 W. Fourth-st.; George Greish, 905 E. State-st.; A. Ulrich, 1612 E. MUNICIPAL COURT IS BUSY PLACE AS SPEEDERS POUR IN

Fines and Costs for First Day and Half This Week Total $470

One of the busiest periods in the history of municipal court was recorded the first day and a half this week when fines and costs totaling approximately $470 were taken in. This represents receipts from cases heard between Monday morning and Tuesday noon, according to William R. Kreiss, municipal court reporter.

Speeders topped the list of offenders, more than 20 persons paying fines on this charge. The following motorists pleaded guilty to exceeding the speed limit, and each was fined $10 and costs, totaling $132.30 in all: Walter Schmidt, 824 W. Lawrence-st., 33 miles an hour on S. Cherry-st.; Clifton London, 919 W. Winnebago-st., 32 miles on S. Cherry-st.; Silas Hinz, Oshkosh, 40 miles on S. Cherry-st.; Harry Fenske, Neenah, 34 miles on S. Cherry-st.; Mike Ives, 34 miles on S. Cherry-st.; Walter Kitzler, route 2, Appleton, 38 miles on W. Wisconsin-ave.; Leonard Graf, Kaukauna, 38 miles on N. Richmond-st.

Walter Baether, route 1, Menasha, 38 miles on N. Richmond-st.; Arthur Ziger, Menasha, 36 miles on S. Cherry-st.; William Ahern, 411 N. Chestnut-st., 34 miles on S. Cherry-st.; Walter Heine, Kibbora, 38 miles on S. Cherry-st.; John Springer, Menasha, 36 miles on S. Cherry-st.; Walter Kitzler, 36 miles on S. Cherry-st.; Wayne Rowan, 36 miles on S. Cherry-st.; Harry Ranz, Neenah, 40 miles on S. Cherry-st.; James Clinton, Neenah, 42 miles on S. Cherry-st.; Donald Rogers, 1338 W. Prospect-ave., 36 miles on S. Cherry-st.

Cherry-st.; Wayne Rowan, 36 miles on S. Cherry-st.; Harry Ranz, Neenah, 40 miles on S. Cherry-st.; James Clinton, Neenah, 42 miles on S. Cherry-st.; Donald Rogers, 1338 W. Prospect-ave., 36 miles on S. Cherry-st.

All these arrests were made over the weekend and Monday by city and county motorcycle officers. Motorists appeared to have a speed mania the last few days, one motorcycle officer pointed out. All of which is good for the court's coffers but hard on the motorist.

Steve Gossens, Kaukauna, parted with $100,000 for his fine and costs, when he pleaded guilty to drunkenness. He was arrested last Saturday by R. H. McCarthy, chief of police in Kaukauna.

Several more motorists arrested for speeding have not yet appeared in court, it was reported.

CALLES' DAUGHTER WON'T WAIT FOR WEDDING GOWN

Nogales, Ariz. (P)—Love refused to wait on Paris modistes, and the wedding of Senorita Ernestina Calles, daughter of the president of Mexico, and Thomas Arnold Robinson, young New York business man, formerly of Appleton, will take place on scheduled Tuesday night whether a missing tulle dress arrives or not.

A simple frock of white satin, a family heirloom will be Senorita Ernestina's wedding gown. Instead of an $8,000 Parisian creation for which she has been awaiting. Non-arrival of the tulle dress caused postponement of the marriage from last Sunday to Tuesday night.

Rosa Endres and Henry of Milwaukee, William of Canada, and Mrs. Alfred Johns of Kaukauna; one sister, Sister Eulalia of Milwaukee; and one grandchild.

All were present at the funeral except one son, William.

YOUTHS SUSPECTED OF CRIME RETURN TO BOYS' SCHOOL

Companions in Alleged "Crime Wave" Are Arraigned for Larceny

Two of the four youths arrested by police over the weekend for complicity in a series of petty burglaries in Appleton within the last few weeks Monday afternoon were returned to the Industrial School for Boys at Waukesha. They recently had been paroled from that institution. They are George Lutz, 17, Albia park, and Henry Van Ryzin, 17, 414 E. Atlantic-st.

Their companions, Raymond Lelsen, 17, 311 N. State-st. and Adrian Meidam, 16, 341 W. College-ave. were arraigned in municipal court Monday afternoon on charges of larceny, but both pleaded not guilty.

The former was specifically charged with having stolen a Firestone tire and rim worth approximately $6 from a car owned by G. H. Pruchnotski, Appleton, several weeks ago. The date of his trial was set for 2 o'clock Friday afternoon, May 19, at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, May 17, at 2 o'clock.

Following his arraignment he was lodged in the county jail until his trial. Then on to the Industrial School for Boys. Lutz and Van Ryzin have been inmates of the industrial school, according to police records. The former was paroled last January, while Van Ryzin gained his freedom about three weeks ago, it was learned. A representative of the Waukesha institution was in Appleton Monday afternoon to take the youths back there.

Since their return to Appleton, Lutz and Van Ryzin boys banded with the other two to carry on their petty practices, according to police. Sometimes all four of them worked together on a "job." At other times only one or two performed the deeds laid to the gang. They confined their efforts to grocery and tobacco stores, small change and cigarettes evidently being what they sought most.

Markets

BULLS AGAIN RULE ON STOCK MARKET

But They Encounter Strong Opposition, Especially Among Oil Shares

New York (P)—Operators for the rise regained control of the price movement at the opening of Tuesday's stock market, but they continued to encounter strong opposition from the oil shares. The oil shares, particularly among the oil shares, Federal Mining and Smelting, Preferred, Houston Oil, U. S. Steel Iron Pipe and Worthington Pump. Bullish sentiment was created by the unexpected decrease in brokers' loans reported by the Federal Reserve bank, the first drop since March 25, and by the arrival of another shipment of $6,000,000 in gold. Speculative interest centered at first in the railroad shares, Reading and Colorado and Southern were elevated to new peak prices. Foreign exchanges opened slightly easier, with demand steady in gold and silver. The market was characterized by a substantial stream of selling orders which forced Ludlum Steel 3 points under Monday's high of $18.75. M'GOVERN, BANCROFT DEBATE ON PRIMARY

Former Governor Upholds Present Law Against Old Convention System

Milwaukee (P)—Political events of the last 25 years in Wisconsin were examined, and a few dry bones rattled in a debate on the primary election law between Levi H. Bancroft, former attorney general, and Francis E. McGovern, former governor, Monday night. An audience which packed the hall applauded thrusts on each side.

Abandonment of the convention system has released a whole train of evils, ranging from government by a minority and rule by progressive political bosses to debauching the press, Mr. McGovern said. He described the primary as the Pandora's box from which all the present political evils of the state sprang.

Return to the convention system means going back on the idea of the government by and for the people, Mr. McGovern said. Admitting that the primary system had defects, he held that the evils were not to be compared to the sinister influence at work under the old convention system.

ASSEMBLY PONDERSBILL TO FIX TAXINGLIMIT AT 4 PER CENT

Interim Committee's Proposals for Tax Revision Due for Death

Madison—(P)—With but few minutes before it demands lengthy consideration, the assembly, at its week-opening session Tuesday night is expected to make short work of the calendar.

Assemblyman Thomas M. Duncan's joint resolution memorializing congress to revise and amend the tax laws of the country is the first item on the schedule for the evening session. It is recommended for adoption by the state affairs committee.

Assemblyman Nelson's bill removing the $30,000 restriction on the appropriation for state aid for mothers pennons is up for consideration, with passage recommended by the finance committee. It allows use of a "sum sufficient" to meet the lawful needs of that fund.

The municipalities committee has recommended passage of the bill raising the lawful maximum amount of municipal tax from three and a half to four per cent of the assessed valuation of real and personal property.

The bill for an annual appropriation of $5,000 for improvement of recreational facilities and conveniences in state parks is to be considered, with passage recommended, followed by the bill to impose penalties for sale of meat as a kosher product when it is not strictly kosher.

The bills for changing the term "mothers' pension" to "aid for dependent children" and changing the name of the "Wisconsin Military Reservation" to "Camp Williams," are also up with approval suggested by the committee which heard them.

OPPOSE TAX BILLS

Three interim committee proposals are before the house, all recommended for killing. One eliminates the income tax for 1927 and makes other changes in the income tax law. Another relates to overpayments and underpayments of income taxes and the third makes arrangements for payment of income taxes by persons selling personal property on the installment plan.

Also recommended for indefinite postponement is the Krause bill removing the sections of the statutes setting up rules for the licensing of teachers and putting all such power into the hands of the superintendent of public instruction.

Assemblyman Fronck's bill designating at what points in the transportation of logs and timber such forest products shall be assessed for taxation, is up for final passage, along with the interim committee proposal, passed by the senate, requiring that students of bona fide residents of Wisconsin be exempted from payment of extra tuition in normal schools, instead of allowing free entrance, upon declaration of intent to teach in Wisconsin.

Wednesday the assembly will consider, among other bills, the following measures:

Reconsideration of Assemblyman Ingalls' bill for holding party state and county conventions before the primaries.

The Peterson resolution for investigation of the business of chain store companies.

The joint resolution for creation of an interim committee to submit to the next legislature a revision of the insurance laws.

The Lawson bill for taxation of bank incomes instead of capital stock.

The schmiege bill for limitation of expenditures of candidates for election to state and congressional offices.

BURGLARS BREAK INTO NOVELTY DYERS SHOP

Burglars broke into the Novelty Cleaners and Dyers, 215 E. College-ave Monday night and stole approximately $10 out of the cash register. It was reported to police Tuesday morning. The change in the register represented the receipts from shoe shines of the preceding day. Nothing else was stolen, so far as could be determined Tuesday morning.

Entrance was gained through a window on the first floor in the rear, the entire window having been removed. Several clear finger prints were left on the glass, the only clues which police have to work on, and Sgt. James Moore, finger print expert of the police department, examined the prints Tuesday morning.

AVERAGE LENGTH OF LIFE IN STATE INCREASES 8 YEARS

Ordinary Age at Death in Wisconsin Is 48.8 Years, Board Reports

Madison—(P)—The average length of life for Wisconsin citizens has increased eight years in less than twenty years.

This is the conclusion of the state board of health, based upon statistics compiled over a period extending from 1908 to 1926. The average age at death in 1908 was 40 years and a few months while now the average is 48.8 years.

Figures show that the severe epidemic of influenza occurring in 1918 had a material effect in shortening the average length of life in Wisconsin. The effect of influenza continued during the years 1919 and 1920, in both of which years the disease continued to prevail above its normal expectancy throughout the United States.

Commenting on the data, an official of the state board said that one of the factors causing increased longevity was better control of communicable diseases. This control was indicated in the information given regarding the decrease of deaths from various diseases. These decreases were as follows: Typhoid fever, 55 per cent; meningitis, 73 per cent; measles, 47 per cent; diphtheria, 58 per cent; scarlet fever, 50 per cent; infant mortality (under 1 year of age), 46 per cent; whooping cough, 43 per cent; tuberculosis, 42 per cent.

In contrast to these decreases that occurred in the case of communicable diseases, there was noted an increase in the number of deaths from three of the principal causes of disease at the present time. These increases were as follows: Nephritis, 12 per cent; organic heart disease, 49 per cent; cancer, 42 per cent.

In view of the general showing made, the state board of health made the claim, "Expenditures for public health yield a larger return than any other investment."
